“Learning Process Continues Until the Day You Die”

Principal's Message

The future depends on what we do today. It is like a thought, meaning that it is our actions that define and shape our future. In other words, our every action in the present will determine our outcome in the future. That is why man is compelled to do good karmas. We believe that whatever we do now will have consequences in the near future. The past, present, and future are connected by a continuous chain of events. In this way, present events are related to past actions. When we understand this, we realize that the future depends on past events. This is what we learn from history. The reality is that every decision you make and every action you take will determine what your future will look like. When you reach your goals in the future, you will look back and realize that your journey was so rich and the satisfaction is immense. So, continuously work towards the future you want and make the best use of your time and resources today. Let us be productive, be a good example to others, and be a blessing to them. As we live in this world, let's inspire our people to do better in our society and the new generation.

I am very glad to see the publication of a second news bulletin. The St. Mary's Chronicle is a reflection of a series of creative programmes undertaken by our institution, departments, associations, and various clubs over the past months. I express my gratitude to the entire St. Mary's family for the wholehearted support and great service rendered by all for the good work of our Institute. A big congratulations to the IQAC Magazine Committee members for completing the St. Mary's Chronicle beautifully.

We miss you Udayan sir....!!!

Let us pay homage to our colleague and friend Udayan sir who had been very much with us for more than a decade. Ever since he joined St. Mary's college as an Assistant Professor of English, his presence was a lively and happy experience to his students, colleagues, the office staff and the college authorities. His sudden demise has filled all our minds with infinite grief. Let me recall to my mind what Udayan sir appeared to me during the period of our close association.

Udayan sir was not fortunate enough to be born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Naturally he did not have the opportunities to get higher education in regular and reputed institutions. But he did not allow his poor circumstances to be an obstacle to fulfil his ambitions. He strove hard to achieve his goal and ultimately acquired bachelor and post graduate degrees in English language and literature by private study. Finally, he fulfilled his ambition and became a teacher, not just a teacher but rose to the position of professor of post graduate students of English. The graduate and post graduate students of English at St. Mary's College have been great beneficiaries of his teaching. Students appreciated his teaching, and I hope that they will never forget him as long as they are alive.

Ever since his joining the Department of English, I was closely associated with him, and I am glad to state that I had have no occasion to have any disagreement or displeasure. In fact, it was he who carried out the responsibilities of the Head of the Department most of the time. Consequently, he had also to encounter undeserved blame from some of the colleagues who were unhappy with the allocation of work or the distribution of Time-Table. He was prepared to take up any amount of work and did it with dedication. He could tackle authors of any period-traditional, modern or postmodern- with ease. Books were his companion and he studied them thoroughly and taught them successfully. Whenever the management allotted some funds to buy books for the library, it was he who prepared the list of essential books with the cooperation of his colleagues. He volunteered himself to go to Bangalore, Chennai, Ernakulam and Kozhikode along with the team to purchase books. Udayan sir was so familiar with all the books available in the library that he could guide and help newly appointed teachers to select the most useful books for teaching a particular work by an author.

He was simple, unassuming, unpretentious and sincere. I do not think that he had had any special training in the art of teaching. But he taught in his own characteristic traditional method which I am told was liked by his students. It was his hard work and sincerity that made him a useful and good teacher. We know that Scholarship alone does not make a person a good teacher. When students realize that a teacher tries his best to their benefit, they will certainly respect him, and this is the best reward that a teacher can ever expect. Udayan sir could win the hearts of all his students.

The love for power and position is a human weakness. But Udayan sir was quite different. He was very reluctant to accept any position. when there was an offer to become the Head of the Department not only he declined it but told the authorities that he would take up any amount of teaching assignment, but he would not receive any such position. He did not also like to appear on the stage. When occasions arose, he would depute someone else to take his place. He was friendly with all his colleagues, other staff and the college authorities, but he always kept a little distance with everyone. Now let us take Udayan sir's departure as a reality. What is lost is lost forever. What we can do is to accept it as the will of the Almighty.

Udayan sir's untimely departure has created a vacuum in his family. His unemployed wife, his young children and their education, his unfinished house, etc... are problems to be resolved. The most urgent need is the completion of his house which was his dream. What his colleagues, friends, students and well-wishers can do is to cooperate with those who take the initiative contributing what they can to complete this project.

It is consoling to learn that all the members of his family are greatly attached to one another. Theirs a joint family and they were all staying together. Let us all pray that the good God grants him eternal peace. May God console and bless his bereaved family.

We all miss you Udayan sir – your colleagues miss you, your students miss you, your family miss you, all your friends miss you, all of us miss you...!!
